

Thank you for your hard work this week. There was a flood of information to understand and new processes to learn.

Give yourself some grace to make mistakes as you learn, stay connected with the people you care about, and don't get discouraged. We are educators – we got this!

We know there are lots of questions about grading, professional fund, taking leave, what next year will bring, and so much more. We are working to provide updated, accurate information every week.
